Four-Square Organizer

Use the squares below to organize your essay or story.

The diagram is a large square divided into four quadrants by a vertical and a horizontal line. In the center of this large square is a smaller square. The four corners of the large square are formed by the outer edges of the quadrants, and the central square is positioned such that its sides are parallel to the lines that divide the large square. This layout provides four main sections for notes and a central section for a summary or conclusion.
